

CLAY LACY AVIATION ANNOUNCES NO SPECIAL EVENT FEES AT ALL FBOS NATIONWIDE DURING WORLD CUP 2026

News / Business aviation

Clay Lacy Aviation will not charge special event fees at any of its FBO locations throughout the United States during the 2026 FIFA World Cup kicking off June 11. The company's decision underscores its commitment to transparency, exceptional service and unwavering hospitality as the world's largest sporting event comes to North America.

Doug Wilson, Chief Business Officer for Clay Lacy Aviation FBOs commented: "In our industry, special event fees were originally implemented to help offset the legitimate and significant costs associated with handling high-volume traffic within a compressed timeframe such as the Super Bowl, Kentucky Derby or Formula 1 race weekends. These events can require flying in additional personnel, securing accommodations, bringing in extra ground support equipment, and mobilizing more fuel trucks to meet demand, all of which drive real operational expense. For this global celebration of sport, we want to ensure clients from around the world can enjoy simple, fair, and exceptional service, without any unnecessary surcharges. We look forward to welcoming fans, teams and partners as they arrive in North America for the first time in a generation, to experience the thrill of World Cup soccer."

Commemorative World Cup 2026 Challenge Coin

Plan for Reservations

Clay Lacy Aviation invites guests to experience its world-class facilities, legendary service and a team dedicated to delivering smooth, efficient operations across the nation's most dynamic travel markets.

2

