News / Business aviation, Maintenance / Trainings

ExecuJet MRO Services' Australasian operation is celebrating its 25th anniversary in October, marking a quarter century of technical excellence and trusted service to the business aviation community across Australia, New Zealand and the wider Asia-Pacific region. Founded in 1991 at Johannesburg's Lanseria International Airport - where it remains headquartered today - ExecuJet has grown into a global leader in business aircraft maintenance. The Australasian operation, which started in Sydney in the year 2000, has evolved from a single-site maintenance provider into an award-winning, multi-facility regional network recognised for its depth of expertise and world-class customer support.

Grant Ingall, Regional Vice President Australasia at ExecuJet MRO Services, commented: "Twenty-five years is more than a number; it's a testament to the dedicated people who built this company from the ground up. We've cultivated a culture where quality workmanship, attention to detail and outstanding customer service are paramount. The expertise in our hangars today is the direct result of that focus and our team's relentless commitment. Our greatest asset is our people.

We have engineers who've grown with us for decades, and we're equally committed to mentoring the next generation. That combination of deep experience and new energy is what keeps us competitive and responsive to our customers' evolving needs."

ExecuJet MRO Services Australasia's workforce has grown to nearly 100 professionals, including licensed aircraft maintenance engineers and technicians as well as a robust pipeline of apprentices and technical trainees. Many team members have dedicated over a decade to the organisation, creating a unique blend of institutional knowledge and fresh perspective.

ExecuJet MRO Services Australasia has continued to expand its MRO capabilities following Dassault Aviation's acquisition of the ExecuJet MRO Services Group in early 2019. For example, it is certified to maintain line and heavy maintenance on all Dassault Falcon in-production aircraft types and many legacy models. Maintenance engineers and technicians are trained to the latest OEM standards, so customers receive factory-quality service throughout the region.

The company's mobile repair teams serve as a critical rapid-response resource across Australasia, Southeast Asia and the Pacific, regularly deploying to resolve aircraft-on-ground situations with the backing of seven international regulatory approvals, including Australia's CASA, US FAA, the New Zealand CAA as well as Indonesian, Bermuda, Cayman and San Marino approvals.

Celebratory events will be held across the company's facilities to recognize employees, partners and clients who have been part of ExecuJet MRO Services Australasia's 25-year journey of excellence.
